First, I want to give back to my community. I have considered applying for a commission over the last few years and am at a point where I can dedicate the necessary time. Second, I feel that Sacramento is an ideal location for cycling as a viable mode of transportation and it is important that the city do its best to continue to provide resources for cycling issues. Our climate and geography are conducive to cycling, and the poor air quality in the summer is a strong argument for alternative (and green) modes of transportation. A few years ago, I commuted via bicycle from my home in Land Park to my office in West Sacramento. Navigating the streets and Tower Bridge made me appreciate current efforts regarding bicycle safety and also realize how many people commute on bicycles.

I am a cycling enthusiast and a member of the Sacramento cycling community. I participate in many organized cycling events as well as ride my bike to work as often as I can (along the American River Parkway from Downtown to CSUS). I have thoughts and ideas about ways that Sacramento can improve its cycling culture as well as ways to provide safe passage to both riders and drivers. In addition, I have been encouraged by many of my peers to get involved because of my passion for cycling.

I've lived in Sacramento for a few years now and have been excited about the kind of community I've found here. When I moved here for work, I didn't anticipate what a strong, dynamic city Sacramento was, or the kind of potential it had. As a resident, I've been excited to participate in developing a stronger community in my neighborhood, and I'm interested in helping with the city as a whole since good public policy (and great, livable cities) have always been a passion of mine.

I'm particularly passionate about continuing to grow Sacramento's bike-ability. The strong bike network that we have is a good start, but finding ways to help more people from all across the city access it - and make it a part of their commute and transportation options - is something I'd like to be a part of. I'm an avid biker, both for recreation and commuting. I don't own a car, and rely on my bike to get me just about everywhere in Sacramento. So I'm definitely someone that already has a lot of experience with Sacramento's biking infrastructure. But I also strongly believe that we need to expand the population that uses and supports these kinds of projects, in order to make these projects more effective and ensure their long-term viability.

I believe I could be a strong asset to the BAC, and hope I have the opportunity to serve on it. I would be very excited about being involved in it.

Interest Statement – Matt Read

May 8, 2014

To: Personnel and Public Employee Committee

Mayor Pro Tem Ashby and members of the Personnel and Public Employees Committee,

Thank you for your consideration for nomination to the Sacramento Area Bicycle Advisory Committee. I am sorry I cannot be there today to personally express my interest in serving on the Committee. Luckily, I had the opportunity to speak in person back in March about my interest and would like to briefly remind the Committee of my background and reasons I would like to serve.

The reason I cannot attend today's meeting is because I will be taking my last final as a law student at University of the Pacific, McGeorge, in Oak Park. In my time at McGeorge I have committed my education and professional experience to municipal issues, including the cause of alternative transportation.

At the Governor's Office of Planning & Research, I analyzed legislative proposals relating to bicycle safety and finance opportunities. Likewise, I developed substantial experience with traffic analyses under CEQA as they relate to bicycle projects and new development. This experience helped me understand challenges to implementing good bicycle policy at the city level, but also gave me insight into how to avoid complications and delays.

As you well know, bicycle programming and infrastructure is enjoying increased enthusiasm among health advocates and planning professionals. As a result, innovative tools and financing are available to increase cycling's modeshare of commuters and recreators. As part of the SACBAC I would contribute my knowledge to bring these emerging approaches to Sacramento. Part of this effort can and should be focused on "transportation equity," or ensuring that bicycle infrastructure is distributed equally across all neighborhoods.

Sacramento has already shown serious dedication to the cause of alternative transportation and I hope that I can contribute my experience to build on those efforts and make Sacramento a safe place for everyone to ride.

Thank you for your consideration.

Matthew Read

As a cyclist and advocate for sustainable, vibrant local economies, I recognize the impact of municipal policy and decisionmaking on our city's bicycle future. The Sacramento Bicycle Master Plan presents an exciting vision of Sacramento's bike future and I hope to contribute my experience to its continuing implementation. Apart from implementing the Master Plan, there are a number of innovative programs happening around the country to increase bike ridership and take cars off the road. I applaud the City Council's efforts on bike registration and increased enforcement of bike theft. As a member of the Bike Advisory Committee, I would work to find ways to build on those programs. At the same time we can and should find more safety and ridership programming to bring to Sacramento, like SafeStreets programs from San Francisco/Eugene, Oregon, and finding innovative ways to coordinate Safe Routes to Schools programming with bicycle planning. Finally, bicycle advocates nationwide recognize the importance of increasing bike ridership among women and people of color. I believe that Sacramento can and should apply those lessons to our own streetscape and as a member of the Committee I would work to achieve those goals.

Over the last 9 months, I have been heavily involved organizing a community group advocating for changes to local policies to sustain and promote urban agriculture. Our urban agriculture coalition also includes local cycling advocates who see urban agriculture as an integral part of local, sustainable economy.

Additionally, in my time at OPR I worked on legislative analysis related to Bicycle Master Plans as they relate to CEQA. Likewise, while at OPR I analyzed transportation systems around the state and legislation related to bike safety and infrastructure.

I ride my bike almost everyday. I commute to work on my bike, I run errands by bike, and I am a recreational cyclist. I love not having to use a car. Biking can be faster, cheaper, fun, and healthier. But it can also be dangerous; I often feel unsafe on certain streets and was hit by a car recently. Dangerous conditions deter people from biking. Riding a bike to commute, for errands, or for exercise should be open to everyone, not just those who are willing to take risks. And while Sacramento has made considerable efforts to foster a safer biking environment, a critical part of any sustainable community, there is more room for improvement. Safer, more accessible bike facilities will entice residents to ride bikes more often, reducing the vehicle traffic and congestion on our streets. I want to contribute to the process of enhancing Sacramento's sustainability and bike-ability. I want to help make the city even more bike friendly than it already is so more people can make the decision to get on their bike and ride.

Member of the Sacramento Area Council of Governments' (SACOG) Metropolitan Transportation Plan Roundtable, a community advisory group that over the course of years advised on the region's transportation plan.

Member of the Sacramento Transportation and Air Quality Collaborative, a multi-year county-wide effort to make transportation recommendations and improve air quality.

Received Citizen Awards from the Sacramento Area Council of Governments (SACOG) in 2002 and from the California Transportation Federation in 2003 for work with SABA. During tenure as Executive Director, SABA received Clean Air Awards from Breathe California of Sacramento-Emigrant Trails, a Civic Contribution Award from the League of Women Voters Sacramento County, an Environmental Recognition Award from the Sacramento Environmental Commission, a Club of the Year award from the League of American Bicyclists, recognition from the Save the American River Association and a SACOG Salutes! While with SABA, analyzed hundreds of transportation and land use projects and plans for the Sacramento Metropolitan Area Air Quality Management District. His analysis included recommendations to make the projects and plans more bike friendly.

For a Caltrans planning grant awarded to the Sacramento Area Council of Governments, analyzed conditions for bicycling around Sacramento light rail stations as well as bicycle access to light rail trains. Recommendations are contained in the August 2006 report produced by HDR Engineering, Safe Routes to

In two partnership efforts between the Sacramento Area Bicycle Advocates and WALKSacramento, examined conditions for bicycling around elementary and middle schools in Sacramento County and around the four campuses of the Los Rios Community College District: American River Community College, Cosumnes River Community College, Folsom Lake Community College, and Sacramento City Community College. Examination included a review of conditions on school campuses as well as field audits (done by bike) of the surrounding areas. The community college work was published in the 2008 report, Los Rios Transportation Connections. The Safe Routes to School work related to the elementary and middle schools was done for Sacramento County.

Under contract with Kaiser Permanente, examined conditions for bicycling at and around the Kaiser Morse Avenue campus and made recommendations for improvements.
