Description/Analysis

Issue: The City of Sacramento continues to see high rates of youth violence, especially in relation to gang activity. The violence, which includes homicide, assaults with a deadly weapon, and robberies result in terrified communities and environments where young people consider violence as the norm.

To address this trend, Congresswoman Doris Matsui, through the Department of Justice, Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, earmarked $200,000 in grant funding for Sacramento Safe Community Partnership. Sacramento's Safe Community Partnership is a collaborative effort between the Sacramento Police Department, the City's Office of Youth Development, Sacramento County Probation, Parole, the District Attorney's office, Sacramento Employment and Training Agency (SETA), Sacramento City Unified School District, as well as community-based and faith-based organizations. This effort will concentrate on youth violence intervention based on the Boston Ceasefire model, which is an evidence-based data-driven outreach and intervention strategy for reducing youth homicides and gang-related violence (see Background – Attachment 1).

Policy Considerations: The Sacramento Police Department would like to use the grant funds for an evidence-based project known as Sacramento Safe Community Partnership. The acceptance of the grant award is consistent with the goals of the Police Department as well as the City Council's strategic plan for public safety.

Environmental Considerations:

California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA): This activity is not subject to the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) because it does not constitute a "project" as defined in section 15378 of the CEQA Guidelines, and is otherwise exempt pursuant to Sections 15321(b) (law enforcement activities) and 15061(b)(3) (no significant effect on the environment) of the CEQA Guidelines.

Sustainability Considerations: None

Commission/Committee Action: None

Rationale for Recommendation: Sacramento Safe Community Partnership receives support from different agencies but currently lacks personnel to assist in the implementation and facilitation of the program. In addition, waiting periods for specialized services can be extensive so having them readily available will assist in the overall success of the program. The grant funds will be used to fund an existing part-time position to assist with coordination of the project, as well as a stipend for services such as mental health services, drug counselors, and life coaches. The position will be selected from an existing pool of non-career, part-time city employees.

Financial Considerations: Funding will be provided from the US Department of Justice, by way of the Earmarks Program through Congresswoman Doris Matsui's office, and is essential for the progress of the program. The $200,000 grant award will be spread out over a two-year period (see Proposed Budget – Attachment 2) There are no matching funds required and there is no current or future impact to the general fund.

Emerging Small Business Development (ESBD): None

Background

For years, Sacramento Area Congregations Together (ACT) has worked to find ways to reduce youth violence. In early 2009, they were introduced to the Safe Community Partnership strategy exposing them to a youth violence intervention program based on the Boston Ceasefire model. This model is an evidence-based, data-driven program that employs targeted strategies to get youth and young adults who are the “drivers of violence” off the streets through outreach and direct communication and into jobs and support services.

Safe Community Partnership is a partnership among the Governor’s Office of Gang and Youth Violence Policy, private funders, the Public Health Institute and several California cities. These partners work together to implement this evidence based, data-driven approach designed to reduce serious gun-related street violence. The goal is to make communities safer while ensuring young people who are at risk of violence are provided with a real opportunity to turn their lives around.

Several organizations including ACT, the City of Sacramento’s Police Department, Office of Youth Development, SETA, Parole, the District Attorney’s office, Sacramento County Probation, Sacramento City Unified School District, as well as many faith and community-based groups, formed to work as a collaborative under the umbrella of Safe Community Partnership. Sacramento’s Safe Community Partnership is planning a pilot project in the City of Sacramento. The strategy focuses on five building blocks for success:

1. Data Analysis: Identify the “drivers of the violence”; the “who, what, when, and where” of youth violence.
2. Direct Communication: A “call in” is set up where identified individuals are invited to meet with a range of partners and service providers. They are told that if they discontinue their violent behavior, the community will provide them with opportunities to succeed.
3. Support Services Pipeline: If the youth decide to seek assistance they are connected to high quality employment opportunities. Social services and other support services are provided at this point as well.
4. Street Outreach: This component works to get the word out on the street to stop the violence, defuse tension, and gain community support for the intervention efforts.
5. Coordination of Law Enforcement Efforts: Criminal justice agencies target their enforcement efforts on the perpetrators focusing on those young people that disregard the message to stop doing violence.

Currently, Sacramento Employment and Training Agency (SETA) and ACT have funding which can be used for this program. Additional funding is being sought through the California Endowment to assist with technical assistance, as well as a grant from the State for additional program services.
